ORDER EXTENDING TIME TO FILE BILL OF COSTS

Contemporaneously, the court has entered judgment in this adversary proceeding. Among other things, the judgment allows costs to the plaintiff as prevailing party. Costs, of course, are taxed in the manner and within the time period provided in F.R.B.P. 7054(b) and L.B.R. 7054-1.

In view of the multiplicity of issues involved in this proceeding and the length of time that has elapsed since the time of trial, the court will extend the time within which the plaintiff may file its bill of costs. Accordingly, the court hereby extends the time otherwise provided in L.B.R. 7054-1 as follows: the plaintiff shall file its bill of costs, with detailed supporting documentation as to the amounts and the allowableness of the costs sought to be taxed, no later than 25 days after the entry of judgment or 14 days after the entry of an order disposing of the last timely filed motion outstanding of the kind described in F.R.B.P. 8002(b), whichever date is later.

DONE and ORDERED at Tampa, Florida, this 9th day of November, 2000.
